So my wife is getting into Tarot reading and had me “ask a question” to the tarot cards.

So naturally, being an ape, I asked about the immediate future of GME. She pulled one card, the two of swords, with the following meaning (which since she is new to tarot, looked up the online meaning pasted below verbatim):

“When we see the Two of Swords in a reading, we are encountering a stalemate. Two equal and opposing forces are joined in battle, and there seems to be no end in sight. This wasn't what you had in mind when you chanced to walk down this path, and you find yourself caught in the middle. Without something, or someone to intervene, this may continue indefinitely. We find ourselves in a situation where we must make a choice, we can side with one part of the situation, or we can side with the other. Neither seems particularly appealing, which makes the decision even more difficult. But unless we move past this stalemate, there can be no more progress.”

Didn't really get an answer on where GME is heading but damn this is a pretty accurate assessment of where we are now!
