This is a hype post, pure and simple. Hype is good when it is backed by legit opportunities with incredible value. Sharing our excitement for something that we love / has deep value, is just the natural thing to do. As we wait and wait and wait... it's nice to have reminders of why we were so excited to begin with.

This post is for those who hold LRC, or GME, and especially both. This is for those who believe. If you don't like hype or you feel like you might get hurt in the future if you dream too big, then maybe you should not read this until your conviction is strong enough to truly enjoy this. It's not my fault, if you can't hear the bell ringing.

It's finally happening!

I think this may be my last post, simply because we are on the brink of a revolutionizing announcement / launch. Think about that. There probably isn't enough time for me to write another post. That's how close we are.

It blows my mind that the NFT marketplace is about to launch. After all this time, with all of the false dates that we have had... now we actually have a timeframe for release. The thought that we have less than one month of waiting left, is something that is almost too incredible for me to wrap my head around. It's happening. It's really happening.

It's been an honor waiting with all of you... but what we came together for, has only just begun. Before the year ends, many of our lives will begin to change forever. That's not to say that everything will unfold before the end of the year... but the explosion in growth is right around the corner.

If you are like me, you have recently looked at your calculator and realized that the numbers you are seeing / projecting are both incredible, as well as reasonable. It's terrifying, in a good way. It's not about the totals... it's about the % growth. For those who could spare only 10 dollars, for example... making 1,000 dollars is life changing.

One of these days in the next couple / few weeks, we will wake up to the news. Or perhaps you will hear it when you get home from work. After checking your email and Reddit over and over for many months, it's hard to imagine that soon will be the time when the big news is actually dropped. nft.gamestop.com will be much more than a teaser page, reddit will be exploding with excitement (maybe like never before), people will be blasting the news on social media and YouTube and by word of mouth and from the fucking rooftops.

"Overnight", GameStop will transform in the eyes of the public, into a TECH company. Into a blockchain company!

Suddenly the crypto world will finally get to experience the power of Loopring Layer 2 ZK Rollup technology in full force, and this whole idea of using Ethereum without gas fees will explode!

Loopring

Loopring will skyrocket. It will finally get the attention / valuation that it deserves. It's not Loopring's fault that the crypto world doesn't yet understand the warp drive that they built... when most people are still running on impulse engines. Again, you are one of the few that understood the implications without having to actually ride in the rocket first. Just wait until Loopring onboards the masses and takes them for a ride! The market will be salivating to get a piece of Loopring.

Did you hear that Polygon is trying to step up their game with ZK Rollups? Do you see how profoundly bullish that is? A 15 billion dollar market cap crypto is aspiring to be what a 3 billion dollar market cap crypto is. If that doesn't tell you where the price is going... as well as tell you the extent of how the market doesn't know shit about Loopring yet, I don't know what to say. It seems fitting that the coin with the most utility & power should surpass / rival coins with less utility (or no utility at all).

Remember that Loopring said they are going to start marketing heavily when their wallet is ready. They know what they are doing. They know when to market, and when NOT to market. Just wait until the wallet is free. This is when mass adoption starts to take place.

Daniel Wang has been sharpening his blade for many years, and he is ready to serve justice.

The meme above was from the Loopring discord, posted by "sutra". I did NOT create it. But I absolutely love it. Although to be fair... I am sure that GameStop offered their own sword to Loopring as well. Together they will rule the metaverse!

GameStop

GameStop is going to explode, and then it's going to squeeze. This monster cannot be caged. The shorts cannot ride this bull. I'll say it again, that the new fundamental expectations, are higher than the old squeeze expectations. The price that hedgies depend on you to think is a squeeze... isn't even close to what the fundamental value is.

This is essential to understand (for any stock / crypto) so listen up for those who don't understand market caps / floats etc. GME is a low float stock. This means that there are a low number of shares in comparison to many other stocks (speaking strictly about the "official" number of shares in the float). This means that the price per share for GME has to be way higher for the market cap to grow (market cap = overall value of the company).

Hedge funds want you to see a price that is multiple hundreds of dollars... and to think that it is a high price when comparing it to other stock prices. They don't want you to understand that due to there being a low number of shares in the float... that the price per share SEEMS high despite the market cap / value actually being low. They don't want you to see how much room for growth there is. This is why DFV said that GameStop would be about $24,000 per share if it matched the value of Amazon. Because GameStop's price per share needs to be higher, in order to reach the same value as another stock with a higher number of shares. They don't want you to realize that multiple thousands of dollars is not actually as high as it may seem... again if you didn't realize that the float is small. Consider not selling your Andromeda tickets before you even get to the moon.

When the marketplace launches, I believe the lies about GameStop being a dying brick and mortar will finally die out. This narrative has already been fading out of MSM, but the false sentiment lingers in the general public. The NFT marketplace that is about to be launched will change this sentiment, basically instantly.

You see... we are the ones who understood the transformation from the start, and we are the ones who acted accordingly based on facts that were readily available for months (nft.gamestop.com). This is why we got in early.

But the vast majority can't change their perception until they can actually see it in action. Some people need all of their friends to tell them how to feel about it before they even acknowledge it. This is why some people will never get in early on anything... because they don't believe the storm is coming even when they see black clouds outside. They need to be swept up by a tornado to believe in the wind. Oh they will get their storm... but they won't be prepared for it.

Not only will the blockchain portion of the business generate massive income (probably at a low cost)... but the marketplace will also be a catalyst for helping people to view GameStop as a tech company in general. It will attract more attention to the GameStop website as well, as people begin to think of GameStop as more of an online retailer.

But the physical stores are thriving too! The last time I went to my local GameStop, the experience was like it always has been. The employees are psyched to recommend games, and the store is full of people from different age groups. People were coming in looking for Pokémon stuff that was already sold out... and a group of friends were huddled at the register, pulling their money together to buy something as a group. It's the same GameStop I remember, except they have expanded their inventory and are now in touch with what people want in addition to video games. Why do you think Barnes N Noble sells board games / card games in their stores just like GameStop now does? Because it's profitable! GameStop is finally tapping into their potential for reaching the entire gaming industry, and they are even expanding beyond gaming.

Have you actually seen all of the stuff that GameStop sells on their website? Listing it here wouldn't do it justice... all I'm saying is that the next time I buy a telescope or a computer, I am getting it from GameStop. Ryan Cohen and his dream team are not messing around. They are going to take a monster-sized bite out of Amazon.

After the launch, GameStop and Loopring will finally start being viewed / treated like the giants that they are becoming.

The squeeze

I'll just refer to Thomas Peterffy, who urged people not to short GME because the price could go to "unimaginable heights" for existing shorts to close. Shorts have not covered. They must. They must do so on the open market. Why on the open market? Because you own the fucking shares and you are selling on the open market.

You do deserve this
