So Mr Pulte is here and seems friendly enough.

It got me thinking about who else is out there that doesn't know about this community but is or has been vocal about what we're all learning /learnt in the past 18 months. There's so many aspects you could focus on and there are so many rabbit holes.

I opted for the 'the corruption runs deep in wall st' Google search.

Below are a few people I've found who could be reached out to for more info(an AMA) on what they know about The SEC, FED, and Wall St as a whole.

I know this isn't directly GME related per se, but I think it's important to look at the bigger picture to get an idea of why nothing is being done to stop these hedge funds and market makers.

Wrinkled Apes required for this please. I've read and listened and it all makes sense but I need the pro Apes to be able to break it all down into a good coherent DD that even my wife's boyfriend can read.

Thanks.

##Carmen Segarra

After her dismissal from the FRBNY*, Carmen Segarra released audio recordings exposing the Fed's inefficiency in holding the bank accountable. Some of the recordings were featured in a joint ProPublica and This American Life piece (released on Sept 26, 2014). Formerly the National Policy and Outreach Chair at the Hispanic National Bar Association, Segarra now works as an advocate for regulatory transparency and reform. She lives in New York.

##Enforcers

There's an interesting break down of what naked short selling is in the second act of this podcast. If noone does it before I get round to it, I'll provide an excerpt to that part of the podcast for all to listen to. It's so easy to understand.

##Catherine Austin Fitts

"It is slavery or freedom. If you look at what they're planning, what they're shooting for, it's a complete financial and technological control grid. That is slavery. I mean, when the World Economic Forum says it's 2030 and you have no assets, what is it about that that's not clear? You have no assets means you're a slave."

She interviewed Lucy Komisar in August, after Superstonk did an AMA with her:

And finally some more interesting generic reading about Wall St:

Edit:

My account isn't old enough yet to post this to Superstonk so feel free to spread the knowledge over there as I know there's many wrinkled brains over there that are looking for an assignment for tonight.
