Listen up, theres so much negative sentiment over towel stock in this sub it's ridiculous. The same people who were yoloing into it @ $30 are afraid to buy at 10, and i don't care what you do. I'm still buying.

I'm sure a few of you remember the days of video game stock ripping assholes back in Dec 2020/Jan 2021, but I believe we're about to see the exact same thing with towel stock, except now to a much more amplified degree thanks to reg sho. Prime brokers, hedge funds, market makers are stuck in a feedback loop right now that they can't get out of.

Once a stock makes it on RegSho, ALL OF THE FAILS THAT CAUSED IT TO GET THERE HAVE TO BE CLOSED. But Massive_Nectarine, how are fails closed out? Well thanks for asking. Either you paperhand them back to the brokers/hedgies/market makers at what THEY determine the price to be (exactly what is happening now), or you wait for their forced closure to be enacted. T+13 or T+35.

Dont take my word for it. read the damn rule.

It doesn't say cover. IT SAYS CLOSE.

Ok cool so what the does this mean, and why the should YOU care? Look at the anatomy of quite possibly every other name brand squizzle.

Video game sneeze

Video game stock is added to reg sho. T+13 you have a small doinger from hedgies/primes force-closing positions, roughly 1 month later you have MMs force closed on their FTDs. The rest is history. You know what happened next.

=====

But Massive, I know what happened with video game stock, why was the ticker placed at PCO only?
BECAUSE FAILS ARE ONLY CLOSED OUT BASED OFF YOU SELLING THEM BACK.

This was the "nuke" button. To force YOU to close out your position at a price they were willing to pay. Who is they? Whoever holds the fail obligations. Had people diamond handed their shares, how do you think those positions get force closed? SPOILER ALERT: THEY DON'T. The entities with outstanding obligations were able to bring video game stock off the RegSho threshold list by inciting panic in people who held FTDs.

=====

What do you think is happening literally right now with towel stock? THE EXACT SAME THING. towel stock has a ridiculous amount of FTDs that accumulated over the last runup that HAVE TO BE CLOSED OUT. If you were a prime broker/hedge fund/market maker, would you want to close as many shares as you sold @ max price?

NO YOU WOULDN'T. You'd want to knock the price down as much as possible, shake as many paperhands loose as you can, so you can cover AS FEW obligations as humanly possible at the lowest price you possibly can.

Kinda hilarious to see this inorganic "doom and gloom" surrounding towel stock right now when Nothing. Has. Changed. It's almost like this negative sentiment is completely manufactured to reduce damage as much as possible before liftoff.

Unless you're a paperhand, you're still holding moon tickets - you just dont know it yet. All the paperhands that dumped at a loss? Those are going to be the ones FOMOing back in ONCE towel stock rips at both forced closure stages of reg sho.

VW sneeze

Why do you think you see the exact same pattern off every stock that sneezes? If you made it this far in the post and really need me to spell that out to you, read again. Its because of reggie.

While y'all are busy wiping your tiny tears with your wifes boyfriends underwear, Goldman Sachs is going net long BY FAR in towel stock to ride this gravy train to the top.

TLDR:

Video game stock never ended. Towel stock never ended. Towel stock being on the regsho threshold list is about to blast both off to uranus, and witness me.
