Remember the old tweet from RC "Time for pillow fights and 60s music ■"...

Today we're seeing Bed, Bath, and Beyond (BBBY) price going up after news of RC Ventures bought shares and contacted the company. News and lots of posts on Reddit about this, here's some info if you missed it: <https://www.reuters.com/business/retail-consumer/gamestop-chairman-takes-stake-bed-bath-beyond-pushes-change-wsj-2022-03-07/>

As you probably know, BBBY was also presumed to be shorted like GME. We're now seeing RC going after 2 companies now that are reportedly getting shorted. Yet another such company reportedly getting shorted is KOSS.

Check out KOSS' history here. They came to rise in the music industry of the 1960s:

So it begs the question: is pillow fights referring to BBY and 60's music referring to KOSS? I know nothing by the way and am an idiot like most of you. I'm too dumb to give financial advice so this definitely isn't that.

\*\*Also, let's remember GME is the solid game for apes to win here. Don't sell your shares of GME to do something dumb. HODL! This is just to discuss.\*\*
