Hello

Kia Ora

What's up bros

First of all to all you apes out there I love you!!

Second of all I'm a young fella from little old New Zealand, and I am your wife's boyfriend deep in gme. Yes fully drsed!

Im wanting to ask for your help today, I have a very passionate interest in making clothes and Web 3.0.

I currently own a small brand that has a very small run of sustainably considered one of one clothes. I'm looking to fuse this brand into web3.0 and nfts with the goal to become a listed creator on gamestop marketplace, and share my passions with other people while also giving them value beyond a piece of clothing!

The issue I have is I'm a bit of a noob in how I could best go about bringing the RIGHT project to nft community which maximises not only the core idea of the clothing but the experience and value of the customer/community.

So I'm asking you my fellow friends of the gme community is there any one out there who would be interested in helping me develop my idea or at the very least kindly pointing me in the right direction to make this goal possible!

TLDR: I want to become a gamestop market place creator where fashion and nfts are fused together!

For those interested a little bit about my brand...

My brand is called VADAR it is an acronym for visionary, adapt, deluxe, active, rectify.

We focus around making 1 of 1 highly authentic garments that are made of recycled/sustainably considered materials. The idea is to reduce our textile waste as humans to create unique garments that bond emotional connections to the customer.

We have also been developing a QR code system that allows each garment to be active and interact with web when scanned!

In the future I'd like to capitalise on this QR code idea and interlink nfts to these clothes that somehow offer a digital asset along with the piece of clothing to the customer.

Thank you for reading!!

I can post my website link as well if you would like to see my work but it's a work in progress.
