I am not a fan of estimating days for the squeeze, but like the guy with the itchy but hole I can feel this one deep in my plumbs.

In 2020 I bought my first shares of GME, I was feeling good. Then my wife and I decide I need med the old snip, so I went to the doctor that November and when he went to give me my vasectomy he couldn't get to the baby batter tubes on one of my nuts. There's a hernia blocking his view. So we schedule a date for surgery to remove my hernia and get my vasectomy done.

The date of the surgery was January 25th, i had the hernia removed and my balls clipped. That week while I was at home resting laying I was able to take in all the action in recovery.

Now over a year later there's some good news and some bad news the good news is I still own the most shorted stock in history, the bad news is my vasectomy failed. I now have an appointment to get my balls clipped again.

I am calling it now, February 17th is the beginning of the squeeze, I can feel it in my plumbs.
