Smooth brain in search of one with a few wrinkles.

* During the $GME annual share holder event June 9th I know all worthwhile apes will vote in favor of the stock dividend. I hate to assume, but I would think synthetic share holders could not have a vote counted as they were never true and actual shareholders, correct?

* Once a vote has been cast and assuming it is in favor of stock dividend, how soon after would it take for share issuance?

* I DSR-ed a portion of my shares and a portion are in a IRA, which I know can be DSR-ed and shame on me for not yet DSR-ing, but is there a method for determine a real share from a synthetic aside for DRS-ing?

* I would think this upcoming vote makes DSR-ing your shares all the more critical (to determine real from synthetic), correct?
