Is_self: True

This is all temporary in retrospect. GME. The Squeeze. The MOASS small. A footnote.

Eventually buried deep below the memories of other trades. Other events.

One day some will forget all of the memes and DDs. One day some will leave it in the clouds and walk away from the notifications.

The day will come when all of the ■ walk away. The day will come when all ■ will move onto the next wave.

One day only ■■■ will remain.

What then? What next?

What does GameStop the company look like?

What role does it play in the gaming industry?

Has Gamestop expanded into product development? Game development?

What relationships and partnerships could there be?

Is there a merger possible?

What about a buyout?

When all else is stripped away.

What's the value of the frame?

How critical is a view?

How critical are statements of forward looking?

Those are just some of the questions that many should be asking themselves right now..as they prepare to vote and for the annual meeting.

Because Ken, Citadel, Melvin, and all else we see right now is temporary. There will still be customers placing orders, and those orders will need to be filled.

Not what to do when moon, it's about what to do then return.

Huh...it's all tendies and crayons on the ■ until ■'s figure out that they can build space stations.
