I am currently in the process of setting up and IBRK account, then transferring my gme position to cs from there. However, I can't seem to shake that feeling of paranoia in regards to missing the moass (in this regard I mean drsing too late).

From what I have read I beleive Degiro to be a trusted broker in our current situation, however I'd like to be as cautious as I possible can when it comes to this.

So, would it be a legitimate concern to worry about any potential fuckery from the side of Degiro, or should I be alright?

Apologies in advance if the answer may seem obvious.
