TL;DR

Were at a cross roads! The next few weeks could change everything. Or we continue fighting. But the possibilities are bigger than some think.

\----

On the eve of battle there appears to be some speculation in ape communities.

But now things are becoming much clearer we can see what we are about to get into next week.

Which is the unknown.

There are currently 2 main trains of thought I see in the apes today;

1. This will not reveal any naked shorts and we will all get our $APE without much problems
2. If there are only 512 mil $APE then because of the greater number of naked shorts it will be impossible for brokers to ever fill them all so will have to go to the $APE market when it opens and buy them at any price.

The second is more prevalent. But the first is there.

I still cannot find anyone making the first point giving a good reason why.

Unless they think there are no naked shorts.

On the 19th and maybe before.

We will see which is right.

And if what most of the apes are saying is right.

Then everyone in at least the financial world will HAVE to take notice!

With the number of brokers that will face legal action.

So until then apes need to be contacting their brokers and if they see any funny stuff record, post it here, send it to AMC.

We all know that a share recall would be like a nuke to the shorts Martin Shkreli style.

Except without the crime.

In fact, it would be ending the crime. Destroying AMC's short sellers once and for all!

**$APE's Final Form?****

I knew as soon as I saw this that $APE was something bigger. Bigger than AMC. Because AMC needs to pay off it's debt. But they do not want to upset us by diluting the stock... But I think there may be a middle ground that we need to all consider.

This is a proposal to the AMC Board and AA himself & Ryan Cohen to consider. Most of us want to make money. But some of us hold high hopes and lofty ideals in helping making US and by defacto world financial market fair and free from crime.

I think $APE could be this instrument.

Like you all I'm against stock dilution. But am also aware of AMC's debt weighing it down. But I also recognise that the word APE in the financial lexicon is already something that's bigger than AMC the company & even GameStop.

We were the ones who started calling ourselves apes.

So how would AMC Apes feel if the only way stock dilution of $APE would be approved would be if the extra stocks were made for only one buyer...

Say like, I dunno..

GameStop?

What the deal would look like is the same number of $APE will be created to match the legal number of $GME that should be out there. These are then given to Mr Cohen.

All Mr Cohen would have to do then is announce that from a certain date every genuine $GME Shareholder would receive one $APE stock for every $GME stock.

So I guess this has also turned into a proposal for the GameStop board as well...

But not only them.

Everyone will be watching this move. But it can only work if Apes, Institution's & Retail plays their part... Which is simply buy & HODL.

In fact ANY company that is under attack from illegal naked shorting will be lining up for our help.

The revenue will comfortably take AMC out of debt..

And strangely enough leave it in a position of a kind of police of the financial markets?!

With apes as it's marshals'.

And the $APE symbol will become like a Bat Signal for any company in trouble from naked short selling. The term HODL will be enshrined in the financial markets forever. And the ape will become the most feared and respected creature in the jungle!

So this is really big. Because either apes all get an $APE and we then spend the next few months trying to work out how they managed to pull it off.

Or we don't!

Were at a cross roads!

So a lot is really riding on the next few weeks.

We have all come so far, been through so much together.

We can finally see a victory on the horizon.

This is not financial advice.

I think this is class war.
Everyone against the ruling class.

No matter if you are left or right wing.
