1. Today I withdrew a good chunk of money from my 401k. I was able to justify it as a hardship withdrawal and lower the fees for not waiting until retirement. There are roughly 12 diff categories of hardship you can fall under and I assume most apes can find 1 or 2 situations of hardship thanks to the mismanagement of EVERYTHING by our government. These assets lost 20%\~ value over the past months in the marketplace. I have a horrible employer match in single digits. I would've been better off not playing the 401k game but matching money is free money. TLDR: your moneys value is dwindling in 401ks and will skyrocket down if madre of all low compressions happens. IF you believe this will occur and you worry: Take that money out now and buy things of long term value for your life to better preserve your accrued wealth into the future. I took this money out to pay my bills so my gme purchasing power remains ready for savory cheese dips on the price. Reload and keep firing.
2. Appoint designees for your GME positions!!!!!!!! We are in a WAR, wars are NOT won overnight, and we have already lost A LOT of brothers and sisters due to natural causes and the continuity of time. Make sure your hard work rewards those you love besides just sitting in infinity pool. You and I may not see this through.... so plan accordingly.
3. Stop telling people about your shares you own. The time for building community hype has long passed, we're just waiting them out as they sit inside the Shitadel walls and we starve them of their shitadel shitthetic shares (sharts). Once you have money, you don't want to advertise it. It only leads to hands being held out and we want to control the flow of charity and welfare, first and foremost, in the new economy.
