The negative comments I get from owning GME are similar to the negative comments I got for investing in Bitcoin and Tesla years ago.

I try to keep my investment choices to myself but when asked about it I explained everything from the Maxine Waters report to so much of the float being directly registered which doesn't allow those shares to be loaned out.

I know the DD and explain it well but still I get told that I am crazy for believing in all of this.

The truth is people who hate on investments and investors usually don't even understand basic economics.

I trust the DD, a billionaire doesn't continue buying a supposedly failing company with zero debt and so much of the float directly registered for nothing. Yes I'm talking about RC.

Ray Dalio and Jim Simons wouldn't have bought in either.

The DD is so strong but "normal" people keep making me feel like a idiot and belittling my belief.

Those people who tell me this won't M0A$$ also said they believed that inflation would be "transitory".

Does anyone else have relatives telling them they are crazy?
