

Title: IBKR: you may experience issues with order submission due to "technical issues".

Author: 5tgAp3KWpPIEtHtLIVB

Created 2021-10-22 08:23:22 UTC

Permalink: /r/DDintoGME/comments/qdcd7q/ibkr_you_may_experience_issues_with_order/

Url:

https://www.reddit.com/r/DDintoGME/comments/qdcd7q/ibkr_you_may_experience_issues_with_order/

Edit: seems I put one too many layers of tin-foil in my hat today. Looks like it was a genuine random technical issue.

Oops, they did it again?

GME price tanking in pre-market. Any other brokers having issues or is this just an unrelated coincidental real technical issue?

I know this is probably far-fetched but I don't trust these bastards for a second.

Coming to think of it, wouldn't that be a great strategy for advanced fuckery? Disable the buy button on a seemingly random moment (due to "technical difficulties") for retail on all brokers simultaneously dunk the open market price and close some positions at the lower price through Citadel Connect. Then pay a tiny fine and all is good again.