

Title: For The Coinbase Rooks.

Author: RatioAtBlessons

Created 2021-07-16 12:12:53 UTC

Permalink: /r/ratioatblessons/comments/olfnfk/for_the_coinbase_rooks/

Url: /r/CryptoCurrency/comments/oldjls/please_read_if_youre_new_to_coinbase/

Is_self: False

Linked Post:

Body:

I posted something similar awhile back but since we are getting new people everyday, I felt this should be brought up again. So if you are using Coinbase, I just think it needs to be known, there is Coinbase Pro. It's a separate app, but the two apps connect. The fees are a lot lower on Pro, and the best part about it is that Coinbase Pro is free to use!

CB Pro is a little more technical with more options and it's not as easy to look at, but it's totally worth it for the lower fees.

So what's the point of the regular Coinbase? That should be used as your wallet. You can move your crypto instantly between the two once your funds clear. The reason why you would want to use regular Coinbase is because some coins offer staking rewards and it is easier to look at. Also Coinbase has vaults which provide extra security.

You would also want to use Coinbase Pro for selling your crypto, so you can move it back to Pro whenever you like .

I hope this helps you guys, the more money you save from fees, the more sweet crypto you can buy!

Take care and good luck

Extra Tip 1: So you don't have to wait for withdrawal you can actually deposit your fiat on regular Coinbase and move to Pro without having to wait for funds to clear!

Extra Tip 2: Pro allows you to do limit orders which are very helpful when you are trying to catch the dip but have to do other things like sleeping. I have woken up to my limit orders being run through and I got a better price .

Tip 3: Coinbase regular has Coinbase Earn where you can get free crypto for watching videos.

Side note: I am in the US so I don't know if it's different elsewhere