For any real gme apes, seems like more bots than apes are on here,

So a guy in the comments told me if i dont drs my shares, potentially if the fdic has to step in, which is kinda likely, that whoever doesnt drs shares, you will only receive 250k total for all your shares combined?

Seems super false, but wanted to hear back

Also how is no1 worried about drs? Computershare takes days to process transactions,

Total example doesn't reflect any number but say it goes to 1mill per share, you go to sell, that price could drop heavily during the transaction period, in which it will sell at whatever the market price is, when it finally goes through,,

Seems like a potential way for them to buy back a huge portion of shares at a cheap price.

Would like to have evidence or someone with knowledge answer both questions

But also shares opinions and if you want to message me instead, thats fine to

Im just a ape that wants to make sure im covered, and to me drs would make it harder to sell, because tda and other major platforms can sell instantly
