The "Apes" Turn to Direct Registration

GameStop and AMC shareholders (a.k.a the "Apes") have been engaging through their social media communities and board rooms in a way to "shield" the influence of any questionable practices on their favorite stocks.

Even with the whole Meme Stock Market Event being debated at high legislative levels, GameStop and AMC investors are skeptical about market structures and have opted to directly register their shares through the Direct Registration System (DRS). This allows them to avoid having their shares under the custody of a brokerage firm.

This way, in theory, shareholders would be shielded from trading halts, having their
