TIP OF THE DAY: If you are going to switch your shares from Plan to Book, do not leave less than one share in Plan, because it can and will be sold without your consent.

Did we just get hoodwinked for our fractional GME shares? I switched from Plan to Book as some recently recommended then immediately cancelled the pending sale of the fractional shares. The shares I left in Plan were sold today without my consent or input.

After a conversation with a few CS reps, I was pointed to the following verbiage (top of page 9):

>In addition, if a Participant's account holds only a >fractional share, Computershare may, in its >discretion and without notice to the Participant,

>terminate the Participant's participation in
>DirectStock and sell any fractional share as a

>Participant's address of record.

Not only did my fractional shares get sold at a loss, they charged me a $25.12 fee for the privilege of being violated! Perhaps I am being a little overdramatic right now, but I am less than happy.

Anyone else experience this thievery? Or am I the a$$hole for not reading the terms & conditions thoroughly? Or am I the idiot for taking investing advice from strangers on the internet? Probably both.

Edit: Thank you for the awards! First time on Reddit when I didn't feel like Ralph Wiggum after posting.
