Title: Why the DTCC processed it as a 'stock split', how they helped short sellers and how they created new dividend distribution rules 2 WEEKS before the GME stock dividend.

TL;DR: The DTCC published (created) a 'Distributions Service Guide on the 30th June 2022. This outlines how corporate actions are to be handled and exemptions for participants under certain distibution events like stock splits and stock dividends. Ie Dividend FTDs aren't tracked in a stock split.

Obligatory introduction:

Punny again. As always, I'm just a humble user trying to find the truth. Like anyone, I have a little bit of crayon munching smooth brain in me. I may get things wrong but nevertheless, it's in good intentions and an everlasting pursuit of the truth.

I want to clear something up. From my understanding, The DTCC could not process the dividend as a 'Stock Dividend'. If the corporate event were to be assigned directly as a 'stock dividend', this would have meant that SHFs could have provided a CASH ALTERNATIVE. (Explained further on)

They processed the dividend 'within' the stock split. I think papa cohen did this on purpose.

The 'Depository That Clears Counterfeits'...

So, where do I start? It all began with u/joddodd post with the DTCC's notification of Gamestop's issuance of a split by dividend.

[Noice.](https://preview.redd.it/eq50vegjhjf91.png?width=791&format;=png&auto;=webp&s;=b13cb73424d 83a4054f215adf1b835e09eaeeb84)

As you can see, the DTCC tagged and labelled this as a 'stock split'...much to everyone's annoyance. Even the brokers, they seem confused as F*CCCK.

However, many people in the world rely on the DTCC's portal(?) to engage with them and conduct business. In doing so, they've created mountains of user manuals...which are publicly available...which I've opened....and tried to read...and found some shiz.

Throughout this DD, I will highlight clear examples (of what I believe) of the DTCC's blatant attempt to mitigate the catastrophe that the stock dividend would've done to short sellers and brokers.

Convenient time to update your policy.

Did they even have an option for 'stock dividend'?

Yes. Yes they did. They seemed to have purposely mis-assigned this corporate event to suit them (more on this below).

This isn't something crazy. Gamestop didn't try a specialist tactic. This is clearly a standard procedure (undertaken by many companies before). However, it appears that in order to process this...

IF IT WAS DIRECTLY ASSIGNED AS A STOCK DIVIDEND, THEN A CASH ALTERNATIVE COULD'VE BEEN OFFERED. IMO, PAPA COHEN DID THE DIVIDEND INSIDE THE SPLIT TO PREVENT THIS.

Due bills & due dates...where's the shares?

Interim accounting. Yeah that's right. you see the date above labelled 'Due bill - 25 - JUL -2022'? Let's explain what a due bill is and why it's used.

Interim accounting is an important part of the entitlements and allocations process for distributions. The interim period (also referred to as the due bill period) is the period during which a settling trade has due bills attached to it. A due bill is an indication of a seller's obligation to deliver a pending distribution (such as a cash dividend, stock dividend, interest payment, etc.) to the buyer in a securities transaction.

For most bonds, the buyer of the security is entitled to the interest payment (the distribution) on trades that settle up to, including the day before, the payable date, even though the buyer is not the record date holder.

For smooth brains? - This is what you call a 'dividend waiting to be distributed'. It's also what allowed you to buy shares AFTER the record date but still receive divvy shares. Each share had due bills attached ie...dividends...

To be honest, it's a not a bad idea. Maybe that's because it allowed me to grab a few more of those pre-split shares for splitting later on...

however
What if those due bills failed to be delivered when the payable date come around?

Splittin' Facts

The DTCC quite nicely tracks all the failed due bills and attempts to sort the mess out! WAHEY...

I introduce - The Due Bill Fail Tracking System

You might be thinking 'but the DTCC released those shares...'? Well...what if a load of shady brokers that didn't actually have your shares, were now required to find them? Furthermore, the US is known to just be blatantly corrupt, so what about when the German brokers got involved and were expecting shares?...

Well why don't they just 'not track' stock splits?...Oh yeah, that's exactly what they did.

So even if they weren't delivered, their system conveniently DOES NOT TRACK THE FAILS.

NO. I have a system called the Stock Loan Income Tracking System. If you have borrowed stock and you owe it in a dividend, I AM COMING FOR YOU.

However sweet baby kenny, I love you. I won't let them hurt you.

Now you may say, 'Punny, you're contradicting yourself. You said this wasn't processed as a stock dividend'. Now, you may be right. However, I feel obliged to include this due to the many different stories from brokers as to how they received directions on the undertaking of this dividend.
The image from u/jaddodd was just one piece of the puzzle, with brokers stating differences. Could the DTCC be picking and choosing what to label it as to different brokers, for the least amount of fallout? I wouldn't put it past them.
Can you believe this shit? Well yes, I can but this is clearly planned.

Punny out.
