Not going to get all sappy about the upvotes and attention it got. I'm more happier with the discussions it sparked in the comments; that's what we need these days, discussions. Educated, informed and civil.

Anyway, I was scrolling through my eToro feed and apparently they changed their Terms and Conditions. Decided to look through it and they added something fresh to the 'Exceptional Events' category where they can close a position or your entire account.

Yeah, no. I'm out; fuck that shit.

'excessive changes to the price' is more or less in line with what the MOASS may bring. Constant upswings, constant downswings. Mad gains, mad drops, even more mad gains. You know how it'll be; there's plenty of DD over the year that has been created to explain it.

I would say that my confidence from the first post has already evaporated at reading this. I don't think pushing for their attention on their social medias is a viable option anymore. I, as an individual investor, would see it most prudent to get your shares out of eToro ASAP and move them to a broker where you can DRS. IBKR would be that for most Euroapes. Fidelity for the Americapes.

The ape community has been conditioned to hold through all the bullshit. But if eToro might even slightly consider denying you the tendies you deserve, I do not think it is worth your time in continuing to provide them service. It would be my belief that holding ten real shares is better than holding twenty synthetics or fakes. And we don't even know if eToro really does buy our shares; CS is the only way of guaranteeing them.

And yeah, my viewpoint has changed majorly since yesterday and especially since reading the new addition to their Terms and Conditions. But I'm no longer willing to risk being fucked over by another shitty broker.

What do you guys think?
