Stock market crash history and why negative beta stocks like gme are as good as gold.

Negative beta stocks depend on financial crisis - The bull thesis on gme according to history patterns.

Negative beta stocks move in opposition to the market trend altogether as we have seen previously when the market is red and the certain stock we like is green as the DOW and Nasdaq continue to go down like a limp dick in need of viagra:

Volkswagen (I know people get weird bringing this up it's solely for the date) happened in October: https://www.google.com/amp/s/bullishbears.com/vw-short-squeeze/amp/

(For anyone with anxiety about short squeezes it also notes the price stayed elevated for four days so no worries moass won't happen in one day while you're asleep you'll have your chance.)

History repeats its self time and time again. The bull case for negative beta stocks is vast but this is another over looked aspect to add a cherry on top to everything else.
