Title: Must be another coincidence. Fidelity's "error" of over 11 million additional shares for shorting compared to yesterday, GME price dropping from $200 to $188 over the course of this morning, and then the "issue" gets fixed at the exact time to the MINUTE that the price stopped dropping.

Announcement

Hello r/fidelityinvestments,

Given the number of posts on this topic, we wanted to recap the activity today relative to GME (GameStop Corp) shares available to short.

Today, 11/30, our trade ticket reflected an incorrect number of GME shares available to short. After researching the volume with our lending services team, we were able to identify that the root cause was an incorrect entry of the number of shares available to short by one of our external counterparties. The issue was fixed by 12:10pm ET today. The GME shares available to short is now correct on the trade ticket.

We can confirm that the number of shares borrowed never exceeded the actual amount that were available.

Our lending services team is reviewing internal policies to better understand how this error happened. We understand that you place a lot of trust with us at Fidelity and we take this matter seriously.

We have received many posts about this topic, so we ask that you please keep all comments related to the matter in this thread.
