Title: This was fidelitys answer to my post questioning multiple stories about voting our shares, and my response

Author: Freedomlover488

Created 2022-04-28 20:47:06 UTC

Permalink: /r/GME/comments/ue4thp/this_was_fidelitys_answer_to_my_post_questioning/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/gallery/ue4thp

Your comment from fidelityinvestments was removed

∨ fidelityinvestments • · 7h

Your comment from fidelityinvestments was removed because of: 'Violation of Rule #3'

Hi u/Freedomlover488, This post/comment has been removed for violating rule #3.

No posts or comments that may contain misleading, unrelated, or false information. This includes theories that are untrue, statements making false claims, or commenting with unrelated information to the original post.

Fidelity Brokerage Services LLC, Member NYSE, SIPC Original comment: /r/fidelityinvestments/comments/udfgik/gam estop_corp_gme_proxyvotinginformation_please/ i6h3w5l/

∨ Freedomlover488 - Now

Maybe proving that my theory is false would be much better than deleting it from your sub. All censorship does is perpetuate the probability that a theory is true. Expect a call to drs the rest of my shares today. I have now lost all faith in Fidelity as a brokerage. Telling different people different stories, mine after 20 min on hold to make sure I was given accurate info. Do you guys really care about being one of the brokers left standing after the market movement, and wealth transfer happens? Transparency with retail is the way to make that happen, not continually lying about things. People are a lot more forgiving when people, or corporations just say , "I ticked up, I am trying to fix it, I will be honest from here out". Than continued misinformation. Time to decide wether your customer base, who would pay for fair execution of trades on lit

Reply to the Message

Maybe proving that my theory is false would be much better than deleting it from your sub. All censorship does is perpetuate the probability that a theory is true. Expect a call to drs the rest of my shares today. I have now lost all faith in Fidelity as a brokerage. Telling different people different stories, mine after 20 min on hold to make sure I was given accurate info. Do you guys really care about being one of the brokers left standing after the market movement, and wealth transfer happens? Transparency with retail is the way to make that happen, not continually lying about things. People are a lot more forgiving when people, or corporations just say, "I ticked up, I am trying to fix it, I will be honest from here out". Than continued misinformation. Time to decide wether your customer base, who would pay for fair execution of trades on lit markets, are more important than connections with payment for order flow hedge funds, etc, which will suffer greatly within a short time. How many of them will actually make it through this being solvent???? And with a black chain market being developed, which will be widely supported by the retail investors, where will that leave fidelity