Title: I like the Canidate? Author: Leading_Metal8974 Created 2021-09-05 00:25:36 UTC

Permalink: /r/TheGloryHodl/comments/pi2wpk/i_like_the_canidate/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/gallery/pi2wpk through Mannattan earlier this month.

That likely won't do much to close the gap in Wall Street cash. Analyses of FEC data by the Center for Responsive Politics show that, in addition to the $37.1-million-to-$4.8-million overall edge, Romney and his super PAC are taking in more cash than Obama and his super PAC from donors linked to every finance subsector: hedge funds and private equity, securities and commercial banks.

POLITICO's separate analysis, which includes 19 former Obama donors who each have given more than $100,000 to Restore Our Future, showed that most of the 19 had also given to Romney's failed 2008 campaign for the GOP nomination. The analysis found that Obama collected at least five times more from them than Romney in 2008, but that was before the age of super PACs, which have empowered wealthy donors to give much more money to boost campaigns.

Among the group is top Bain Capital

Most Popular

With Delta raging, a highly mutated COVID variant emerges in South Africa

L to R: Peter Thiel, Paul Singer, Frank VanderSloot, Joe Ricketts, Ken Griffin, John Paulson

Thiel, singer, Mcnair and Paulson all via Getty Images; Ricketts and Vandersloot: AP photo; Griffin: cnbc/nbcu photo bank

With looser finance rules and an ever-widening GOP field, the 2016 presidential race is already awash in cash. But while mega-donors like the Kochs and Sheldon Adelson stage mini-primaries for their support, less famous backers are increasingly vying for their own piece of kingmaking glory. Here.

Ш

