So I finally received my first letter from Computershare yesterday (posted and fed the bot too.) I filled out the 8 form or whatever it was called, and mailed it in which will take 5 days or so to get back to CShare, and then probably another week to get back to me with the code. I was wondering, if for some reason things start popping off before I get my online code back, is there a way I can bypass waiting for the code in case of an emergency? Emergency meaning - GME starts ripping through the solar system out of nowhere. Let me know, thank you!
