So, a quick count of the first page of the sub shows 22 posts feeding the bot, and a whopping THREE posts about anything else. (five if you include the pinned posts)

I came here to find news about GME and the store. Not to find out that you've DRSd 5 of your shares. Or 10, or 100, or even a thousand. I don't care. It's important, it helps, sure. But until we get the float locked, or nearly locked, it doesn't matter to me.

It's like cancer research. Millions donated to the research is great! But I don't need to know every single time someone donates 10 bucks to a foundation.

A periodic, even daily, tally of the progress would be great, but the VAST majority of these posts just serve to make it harder to find actual content and news that would be relevant to us.

Note, this is not me asking to stop them, just give those of us who want to find more news an easier way to filter out the irrelevant stuff.
